This comprehensive guidebook describes a 27-stage cycle tour following the course of the Rhine which flows through six countries on its way from high in the Swiss Alps to the North Sea. The 1368km route from Oberalppass to Hoek van Holland makes use of dedicated cycle tracks and country roads, only venturing onto main roads or urban streets for short, unavoidable stretches. The countries passed through are all very cycle-friendly and the route is well provisioned, making it ideal both for experienced long-distance cyclists and those who have done only a little cycle touring and wish to attempt something more adventurous.

Clear route description is illustrated with 1:100,000 mapping and larger-scale urban maps. The guide blends practical information to help you plan a successful trip with historical and cultural notes to enhance the experience.

Passing through Switzerland, Germany, France and the Netherlands (and with short sections in Liechtenstein and Austria), the route is wonderfully varied, from the high mountains with deep glacial valleys and gorges, passing Roman remains, medieval towns, castles and cathedrals, German palaces, great cities, Dutch windmills and relics of 20th-century warfare. And of course, following a river, the cycling is nearly all downhill!
