This guidebook describes the Pembrokeshire Coast Path National Trail, a scenic 290km/180 mile long-distance walk from Amroth to St Dogmaels, taking in some of Britain's finest coastal walking. The path, presented in 14 sections, takes around two weeks to walk in its entirety, but is equally suited to day walking.

This comprehensive guide, packed with background and detailed local information and contacts, contains everything needed to plan a trip in either direction. The guidebook features 1:100,000 Ordnance Survey maps alongside detailed step-by-step route descriptions, and also contains a 1:25,000 scale OS route map on a pocket-sized booklet in the back cover sleeve. The route description links together with the map booklet at each stage along the way, eliminating the need to fold and re-fold a large map.

Renowned for its spectacular scenery, flowers, bird and animal life, this route is also steeped in a rich and intriguing history, much of which can still be read from the landscape.

About the author

Dennis and Jan Kelsall published their first Cicerone title in 1995 and have since written around 35 guides to some of Britain's most popular walking areas: they have also become regular contributors to various outdoor magazines. Their enjoyment of the countryside extends far beyond a love of fresh air, open spaces and scenery: over the years Dennis and Jan have developed wider interests in the environment, geology and wildlife, as well as an enthusiasm for local history, which so often provides clues to interpreting the landscape.
