This guidebook describes the Torres del Paine Circuit, a 140km trek through Chile's premier national park, Torres del Paine. The route is divided into 14 graded stages, with each stage ranging from 1.5km to 18.5km. Beginning at CONAF Administración and finishing at Refugio Paine Grande, the route takes 10 to 11 days to complete.

Located in Patagonia at the southern tip of the Andes, Torres del Paine National Park showcases a vast range of natural beauty. From towering granite spires to vast glaciers, remote valleys and pristine forests, the park offers sublime scenery and enchanting vistas.

This second edition also describes several other shorter walks, both in Torres del Paine and beyond, including a multi-day trek in Argentina's Los Glaciares national park and several excursions from Puerto Natales and El Calafate. Information on linking routes, travel, accommodation and equipment also included.

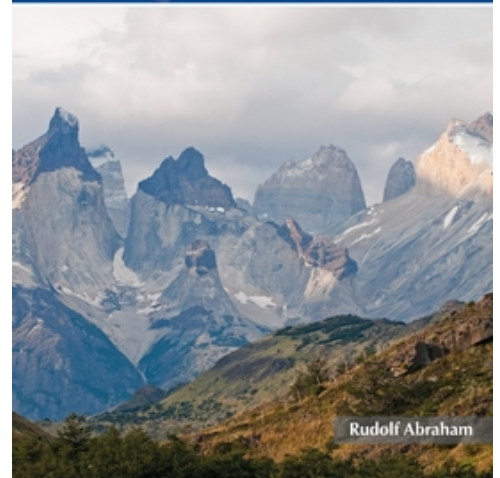

About the author

Rudolf Abraham was born in London and began travelling at an early age in the UK, France and Spain, eventually settling in New Zealand for 10 years. Since graduating in 1995 he has travelled extensively in eastern Turkey, the south Caucasus, Iran and the Central Asian republics, the history, culture and languages of which remain his primary interest. He lived in Croatia from 1999 to 2001, working as an English teacher in Zagreb, and has made numerous trips into the mountains of Croatia and Slovenia. He has contributed introductions to books on Central Asia, Armenia and Afghanistan.
