This guidebook presents walking routes in the spectacular mountains of Ronda and Grazelema in Andalucía. 32 mainly circular routes explore this popular area of Spain, including the Natural Parks of Grazelema and La Sierra de las Nieves, and the Genal and Guadiaro Valleys. Most walks are graded easy or medium and nearly all the walks described can be done from mid September through to mid June, thanks to the area's comparatively mild winters.

One of Europe's most dramatically situated hilltop towns, Ronda lies between two of Andalucía's most beautiful protected areas: the Natural Parks of La Sierra de las Nieves and that of La Sierra de Grazelema, both UNESCO biosphere reserves. With dramatic limestone peaks, fertile river valleys and ancient groves of almonds and olives, the natural beauty of this area won't fail to impress anyone who comes to walk here.

Includes a brief introduction to the villages of the Ronda and Grazelema mountains, a history of the region, glossary and a guide to accommodation in the area.
